

Dear Academic Colleagues,

We invite you personally for

Monday, October 9, 2023, from 11am onwards until 4pm, to a

Roundtable of Monetary Law / Central Bank Regulation Experts

at

House of Finance, Goethe University Frankfurt (Germany)

Campus Westend, Theodor-W-Adorno Platz 3

60323 Frankfurt am Main

(see [Home: House of Finance \(uni-frankfurt.de\)](http://Home: House of Finance (uni-frankfurt.de))))

Room 3.45

to discuss among academic experts

"Do citizens have a right to central bank money?"

as well as other individual rights relating to the introduction of Central Bank Digital Currencies (including the Digital Euro). In other words, when cash usage ends, do citizens have a right to some form of CBDC or is it sufficient if the central bank regulates the provision of payment services by commercial actors?

As part of the European Banking Institute's FinTech group we want to brainstorm this question among a circle of true experts and academic friends.

The topic relates to matters considered most pertinent in Australia today where our distinguished colleague Ross Buckley (UNSW Sydney) has recently been appointed to the Payments System Board of the Reserve Bank of Australia.

The in-person roundtable is intended to feed into a working paper that will be organized by Ross Buckley (UNSW Sydney), Katja Langenbacher (Goethe U) and myself and that will, in turn, underpin a further roundtable to be held in Australia in the coming months (late 2023 or early 2024).

We will be delighted to welcome you in Frankfurt. Note that we cannot provide travel costs, hence we have set the event to allow for traveling in and out the same day; lunch and drinks will be provided.

In case you are interested please send an email to:

fintech@uni.lu

Yours, sincerely

Ross Buckley

Katja Langenbucher

Dirk Zetzsche